

Island Grown in the San Juans Supporter Pledge

Join us in making a healthy local food system in San Juan County!

Island Grown in the San Juans is a branding program that celebrates the quality, bounty, and benefits of food and products grown, raised, made or gathered in San Juan County, Washington. The Island Grown program benefits the farms and farmers that grow and gather local products, and the businesses that use them by increasing production and consumption of local products. The program also educates consumers in the benefits of a sustainable local food system and encourages them to support farms and businesses that use local products creating a healthy local food system.

Island Grown defines "local" as:

- Produce grown in San Juan County
- Livestock and meat products derived from animals that have spent at least 50% of their lives in San Juan County
- Products wild-harvested in San Juan County
- Value-added products for which at least 75% of the defining ingredient(s) and/or labor was derived from San Juan County
